BAERTSCHIGER PULLS OFF INCREDIBLE FEAT IN COMMITTEE'S PRIZE

I'm Incredible sweeps to an upset victory at Kranji

Nineteen years after former Kranji trainer Don Baertschiger landed the inaugural Committee's Prize with Con Air, it was his son Shane who added his name to the roll of honour with lightweight chance I'm Incredible (Lope De Vega) on Sunday.

Baertschiger was then assistant-trainer to his father when the brilliant Con Air produced his trademark turn of foot for stable jockey Eddie Wilkinson to become the first winner of the S$175,000 race over the mile.

Much water has flown under the bridge since, including Don's retirement in 2012 and the handing of the baton to Shane the same year.

But winning the same feature race his father captured 19 years ago and by coincidence in almost identical pink colours bore a special meaning to Baertschiger, especially after he was teasingly called "crazy" when he said he would run a last-start Class 4 winner in the race.

Rated only 69 and dwarfed by the other 10 rivals all in a bracket of 84 to 102 points, the son of Lope De Vega was also worse off at the weights given he should have on paper carried 46.5 kilos with respect to the topweight Elite Invincible (59 kilos at 102 points but who was eventually scratched), but carried 50kgs instead.

In racing, figures and mathematics are a numbers game that gets thrown out the window at times. The real deal is played out on the track, and Baertschiger was convinced it was a winnable gamble despite the chasm in ratings.

The smiles grew even wider when a horse who does not typically go forward, Japanese mare Makanani (Black Tide) flew the lids to open up to a commanding lead of eight to 10 lengths down the back and round the second bend.

Into the home straight, Makanani was still well clear at the 400m, but started to send signals of distress at the 250m.

Spearheading the charge of the light brigade, I'm Incredible kept whittling down the margin and as he came within striking distance, he pinned his ears back and inexorably swept past Makanani on his way to a stunning giant-killing act.

"When I told the owners, I would run the horse in the Committee's Prize, they thought I was crazy," said Baertschiger.

"There aren't a lot of horses on 69 points who run in a major race, let alone win. But when you look at the field, the other horses may be higher rated than him, but they were beatable.

"Elite Excalibur would have been harder to beat if he had run, but he was scratched. The race then became more open.

"Harry (Kasim) also rode him a treat, he didn't panic and waited when the mare opened up. I was laughing as my horse had a lightweight, and I knew he has a good turn of foot.

"At the 300m, I was already telling (owner) Desmond (Ong) he would win. He also ran time (1min 34.4secs).

"I think that horse can improve further. It's only his second-up run, the Gold Cup is his goal and I will probably look at the El Dorado Classic (2000m on September 20), which is a handicap race, as his next target.

"It's good to see Desmond win his first Group race. He and his dad have been with me for a long time.

"My dad won the first Committee's Prize 19 years ago and it's a big thrill to win the same race today, not quite in the same silks, but in the same pink and red colours!"

Sold out of the Curraghmore draft for $260,000 during the Premier session of the 2016 National Yearling Sale, I'm Incredible won two trials in Australia under the name Miraculous Moment before being on-sold to his Singapore owner for whom he has now won five of his 11 starts.

TE AKAU PAIR PLEASE RICHARDS

Creditable performances from his star performers Te Akau Shark (NZ) (Rip Van Winkle) and Melody Belle (NZ) (Commands) in the Gr.2 US Navy Flag Foxbridge Plate (1200m) at Te Rapa on Saturday has left trainer Jamie Richards satisfied with the start to a big spring campaign for both horses.

Te Akau Shark stormed home from near last on the turn to run impressive winner Endless Drama (Lope De Vega) to less than a length at the line while Melody Belle battled gamely into fourth after peaking on her challenge in the last 150m.

Richards, who celebrated his 30th birthday on Sunday, reported that both of his charges had pulled up well from their exertions and had trotted up nicely less than 24 hours after the race.

“They were both a little tired and left a wee bit of feed which was to be expected after a tough first-up run,” Richards said.

“While we went there to win, you had to be satisfied with how they both performed and there is no shame in losing to a quality horse like Endless Drama.

“The wide draw made it tough for Te Akau Shark as he got back and had to come very wide in the straight but he closed things off nicely in the final stages.

“Michael McNab gave Melody Belle a great run from her draw but she is a year older now and I think she is definitely looking for 1400m and further.

“She never gave it away in the straight and was holding her ground well at the post so I don’t think she lost any admirers with the run.”

Richards confirmed the immediate plans for both horses would be for Te Akau Shark to head straight to Sydney while Melody Belle will continue on her mission to the three feature events during the Hawke’s Bay Spring Carnival.

“We will continue to monitor them over the next few days but as long as they have no issues then we will continue with their campaigns as planned,” he said.

“Te Akau Shark will head across to Sydney on Monday week and will run in the Tramway Stakes (Gr.2, 1400m) at Randwick on September 7.

“Melody Belle will go to the Tazino Trophy at Hastings (Gr.1, 1400m) where she will meet Endless Drama again. She is going to have to lift to challenge him but we’re confident there is still a turn or two in the screw with her.

“We are focussed on Hawke’s Bay at this stage and won’t make any further decisions for her until after that.”

Richards is also looking forward to the Taupo meeting on Wednesday where a large number of his stable runners will kick off their spring campaigns including four-year-old mare Savy Yong Blank (NZ) (Savabeel) who finished off her three-year-old season with a creditable fifth in the Gr.1 New Zealand Oaks (2400m) after being placed in the Gr.3 Sunline Vase (2100m).

BIG GUNS ON SHOW AT TAUPO TRIALS

Class mare Rondinella will step out at Wednesday's Taupo trials as she prepares for her raceday return (Trish Dunell)

The Roger James and Robert Wellwood stable will step out stable stars Rondinella (NZ) (Ocean Park) and Concert Hall (NZ) (Savabeel) at the Taupo trials on Wednesday with James keen to get a line on their fitness levels as they get set to commence their spring campaigns.

The Taupo club will run two open 1100m trials prior to their racemeeting on the day with James keen to take advantage of the predicted improved track conditions at the venue for the pair.

Rondinella is set to line-up in the first of the trials off the back of an exhibition gallop at Tauranga recently.

"I am pleased with how she is shaping up so far but the trial will give me a better guide on where she is at and what we need to do to get her ready for her first start this time in," James said.

"She had a good break after her efforts in Sydney and seems to have strengthened up even further for this preparation which is a very good sign.

"She went from a one race winner to competing at Group One level in Australia in her last campaign, so she came a long way in a short time."

The Ocean Park mare, who holds a nomination for the Gr.1 WS Cox Plate (2040m) at Moonee Valley, finished off her four-year-old season running fourth in the Gr.1 Sydney Cup (3200m) following a third-placed finish behind Avilius (Pivotal) in the Gr.1 Tancred Stakes (2400m), both run on unsuitable heavy tracks.

"If she can make the necessary improvement then she could be in for quite a season as I believe her potential is relatively untapped," James said.

"She finished in the money in her last three starts on wet tracks which weren't really to her liking so to do what she did was quite remarkable.

"At this stage we haven't really mapped out a programme for her but once we have seen how she trials then that will be the next decision to make.

"She is likely to go straight to Melbourne for her first-up run which could be either in the New Zealand Bloodstock Memsie Stakes (Gr.1, 1400m) at the end of the month or wait for a race at Moonee Valley a week later.

"She holds a nomination for the Cox Plate while the Caulfield Cup is also an option although I think she will be suited to a fast run 2000m on a good track as her best option."

Savabeel five-year-old Concert Hall also proved a revelation during her last campaign where she won three of her last four starts including the Gr.3 Cuddle Stakes (1600m) at Trentham. She will tackle proven Group One performers Volpe Veloce (Foxwedge), Shadows Cast (NZ) (Per Incanto) and Nicoletta (NZ) (Savabeel) in another star-studded line-up in the second 1100m trial on Wednesday.

"Concert Hall was very good last season and we're looking forward to her return as well," James said.

"I'm keen to try her over ground during this campaign as her breeding suggests that is where she will be best suited.

"We thought about it last season but she was going so well at 1600m that we decided to keep her to that distance.

"She is back looking big and strong and we should get a good line on her after the trial."

The Taupo track was rated a Slow7 on Sunday but with an improving weather forecast, hopes are high that the track will dry out further before the meeting.

AUSTRALIAN GROUP ONE TARGET FOR SENTIMENTAL MISS

Last season's Gr.1 New Zealand Oaks (2400m) winner Sentimental Miss (NZ) (Reliable Man) passed the first test of an abbreviated spring campaign when she flashed home to finish close-up behind the placegetters in Saturday's Gr.2 US Navy Flag Foxbridge Plate (1200m) at Te Rapa.

The Go Racing Yesteryear Syndicate-owned four-year-old showed she was well on target for a potential Australian Group One assignment after enjoying a decent winter break following her Oaks triumph back in March.

Racing Manager Matt Allnutt, who had advised syndicate members before the race that the mare was well but not to expect a winning run, was over the moon with the performance that saw her finish off strongly to finish seventh in the hands of rider Craig Grylls.

"We knew she had really come on with her time off and she was ready to get back on the track but we weren't expecting too much from her as 1200m was always going to be too short for her," Allnutt said.

"We told Craig not to bustle her early and let her run home and he rode her perfectly. After watching the replay, you couldn't help but be delighted with the run as she was taking ground off them all the way down the straight and she was very strong after the line as well.

"She definitely surpassed our expectations and that augurs well for what we have planned for her."

While the Reliable Man mare holds a nomination for the Gr.1 Livamol Classic (2040m) at Hastings on October 5, it is more likely she will be in Sydney to contest the Gr.1 The Metropolitan (2400m) at Royal Randwick on the same day.

"We have planned all along to give her just the four runs this time in before tipping her out again," Allnutt said.

"As long as she pulls up well from Saturday, she will go to Hastings on August 31 for an open 1600m before she gets on a plane for Sydney.

"If she performs up to the mark then she will run in the Kingston Town Stakes (Gr.3, 2000m) at Randwick which is two weeks before the Metropolitan.

"She will go back in the paddock after that as we don't want to overdo things as we have bigger plans for her next year."

Allnutt believes Sentimental Miss has the ability to foot it at the highest level, a belief that will be tested at the Sydney autumn carnival and then possibly in Melbourne later next year.

"We know we are dreaming big but if she develops like we think she can, then a tilt at the Melbourne Cup next year is not out of the question," he said.

"That's why we don't want to overtax her this time in as we want her at her best to be able to take on a challenge like that.

"It may not pan out that way but after what we saw on Saturday it would be nice to think we could live that dream."

HALES COMPLETES WORLD'S LONGEST HORSE RACE

Ex-pat Kiwi Justine Hales is celebrating a massive achievement after completing the world's longest horse race, the Mongol Derby, a race held for charity.

Hales, who manages the Cavallino Estate pre-training operation for leading Australian trainer Ciaron Maher, tackled the 1000km event that recreates the horse messenger system developed by Genghis Khan in 1224 for the first time and finished a meritorious equal third behind seventy-year-old Wyoming native, Robert Long.

The exact course for the race changes every year and is kept secret until shortly before the race begins. The terrain invariably includes mountain passes, green open valleys, wooded hills, river crossings, wetland and floodplains, sandy semi-arid dunes, rolling hills, dry riverbeds and open steppe.

Riders are provided with access to 25-27 Mongolian horses, a support team, pre-race training, and access to support stations along the way. The horses themselves are semi-wild and riders must change horses every 40 km at the support stations.

Riders typically spend thirteen to fourteen hours a day in the saddle, with the race lasting around ten days with less than half the racers usually finishing the race in any given year.

It was against that backdrop that Hales took on the unique challenge and although she led at one point, a hoof issue with one of her horses towards the end of the race dropped her back before she eventually finished third.

"It was an amazing experience and just great to finish third," Hales said.

"You can't really explain what the race is like as being out in the vastness of it all is beyond words.

"The winner had been training for a year and was dedicated to his cause, just an amazing bloke.

"I did have the lead at one stage but my horse stood on a stone and developed a massive stone bruise which had to be taken out.

"He did come right but it cost me time so I ended up camping out with a few of the other riders who I ended up crossing the line with at the finish.

"There were a lot of people who dropped out early on, so just to finish was pretty cool although it still hasn't sunk in that we rode 1000km."

Hales reported that she was in good physical condition despite the gruelling conditions that were experienced.

"I'm alright actually, with the worst part probably having chapped lips," she said.

"I didn't get any chafing and my knees held up but it will be interesting to see when I jump on the scales.

"I was pretty fit as I had done a lot of work before the event.

"It is different for everyone in what you go through but thankfully the horses were very good and not really like some of the horror stories they like to tell you beforehand.

"There were a few hairy moments but I think with the number of horses there are, it was ok."

Hales was adamant that a repeat attempt at the race was out of the question.

"No way," she said.

"I've done it now and that's it.

"I would come back to Mongolia though as the countryside is absolutely spectacular and every day you seem to be going through a different country.

"I would recommend it (the race) to people but I won't be doing it again."

Hales had her gall bladder removed just weeks before leaving Australia, making her feat even more meritorious.

Originally from Dannevirke, Hales has recently resigned from her role with Maher and Eustace and will take up a position with Rockmount pre-training facility when she returns.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Three in a row for Showcasing filly Tropbeau

Former Haunui Farm shuttle stallion, Showcasing has enjoyed further stakes success in France with his two-year-old filly Tropbeau taking out the Gr.2 Prix du Calvados (1400m) at Deauville over the weekend.

Having won her last two starts, including the Gr.3 Prix Six Perfections over the same course and distance, Tropbeau was sent off favourite and won with something in hand. She headed last month's Sandown Listed winner Walk In Marrakesh (Siyouni) with 200m to go and pulled clear of her rivals to beat Marieta (Siyouni) by two and a half lengths.

Tropbeau is the first foal of the winning Dansili mare Frangipanni, a daughter of the Gr.1 July Cup heroine Frizzante (Efsio).

Showcasing, who shuttled to Haunui Farm for seven seasons, is the sire of 38 individual stakes winners worldwide including New Zealand Group Two winners Xpression and Showboy. His final New Zealand-born yearlings will go under the hammer at the 2020 National Yearling Sale at Karaka in January.

NIZAR RISES TO THE OCCASION ON LINCOLN MOONLIGHT

Mohammad Nizar was pleasantly surprised when he found out he had a first ride for trainer Shane Baertschiger this Sunday, Lincoln Moonlight (NZ) (Alamosa).

The local apprentice jockey was even more pleased when that unexpected booking turned into his second win for the year.

Trainer Saimee Jumaat's protégé only made his riding debut in July last year, acquitting himself well with two winners from limited opportunities.

Baertschiger was looking for a four-kilo claimer after the handicapper slapped the steadier of 60kgs onto Lincoln Moonlight, who was still chasing that elusive first win in eight starts, albeit five times third in Restricted Maiden races.

The Australian handler, who does not have any apprentice jockey attached to his yard, picked Nizar for the job, with the maiden combination getting lucky at their very first time of asking in Sunday's $20,000 Magneto 2014 Stakes, a Maiden race over 1100m.

Taking a drop off the eye-balling pair of Mr Alfonso (NZ) (Highly Recommended) and Lord Of Light (NZ) (Power), Lincoln Moonlight was still full of running upon straightening, and looming large as the eventual winner.

As half-expected, the duelling pair were left rooted to the spot when the Alamosa four-year-old sprinted on by, skipping clear for a dominant three-and-a-half length win,

"It's my wife who saw the card first and told me I was booked on Mr Baertschiger's horse. I was surprised as he's never put me on his horses before," said Nizar, a former graduate of the Singapore Training Academy for Racing (STAR) apprentice jockey programme.

"I watched his (Lincoln Moonlight's) race replays and I saw he can run on nicely. I was lucky to be the one riding him today.

"He was always travelling relaxed, he can take the speed and he finished off very well."

Baertschiger said he had always thought Nizar wasn't without ability, but he just needed the opportunities – and Lincoln Moonlight was just that perfect leg-up.

"He was due for a win. He had the four-kilo claim, blinkers back on, and if you look at his past runs, he's always raced in much better company than these," he said.

"But I just needed a good four-kilo claimer and Nizar sure can ride. I told him in the mounting yard the horse had a good chance, he rode him one-out one-back and it worked out just nice."

The New Zealand-based Lincoln Farms Stable might have picked up a cheque worth only around $12,000 for the win, but with his previous record of five thirds, his total haul has already shot past the $50,000 mark.
