TALLYHO TWINKLETOE JUMPS TO NATIONAL GLORY

Tallyho Twinkletoe and Aaron Kuru establish a winning break as they head for home in the Australian Grand National Steeplechase (AAP)

New Zealand jumper Tallyho Twinkletoe (NZ) (St Reims) has equalled the feats of a champion jumper of yesteryear with his dominant victory in the Grand National Steeplechase (4500m) at Ballarat.

Tallyho Twinkletoe became the first horse since Mosstrooper in 1930 to complete the Grand National Hurdle/ Steeplechase double in the same year.

Sent off favourite in Sunday’s 4500m-race, Tallyho Twinkletoe, under New Zealand rider Aaron Kuru, recorded a nine-length victory from Spying On You (NZ) (Yamanin Vital) with sentimental favourite Wells (Galileo), aiming for a fourth win in the race, another 2-1/4 lengths away third.

Tallyho Twinkletoe’s victory followed the success of Sea King (NZ) (Shinko King) for Payne in last year’s Grand National Steeplechase.

“I used to love Sea King, but this horse is the best horse," Payne said.

"He can take the race by the scruff of the neck.

"It's silly to say but from the mile he had them covered and took over 1000 (metres) out and not many horses can maintain a gallop like that.

"For a steeplechaser to win the Grand National Hurdle last time and come out and do it again today, that shows his class."

Tallyho Twinkletoe won the New Zealand Grand National Hurdle (4200m) in August 2015 before a series of niggling tendon injuries kept him off the track until March 2018.

He had a light campaign followed by another extended stay on the sidelines before he was prepared for his Australian campaign.

Payne was happy to deflect the glory to Myers and part-owner Jo Rathbone.

"All the work was done before he came to my place," Payne said.

"The smartest thing I could do was not change anything, keep him the same weight and just produce him the same and thank God they put a great foundation under him."

Payne said to get the better of a champion like Wells was so pleasing.

"What he (Wells) did in the Crisp Steeple, surely jumps fans appreciated his effort," Payne said.

"He was out on his feet at the 200-metre mark and he fought back and beat my horse (Slowpoke Rodriguez) and I was pretty happy to see him win.

"So, for this horse to get the better of him, it says a fair bit."

Jockey Aaron Kuru was quick to pay tribute to the Payne and Myers combination after the race.

"It's pretty exciting," he said.

"That Patrick Payne and Kevin Myers combination have been pretty lethal for a long time so a big thank you to everyone involved.

"I got three-wide early in the race so I made my mind up that it was better being out there as I had a horse that could do that and still win.

"I didn't want to look behind me (in the home straight) and didn't realise how far out in front I was.

"He has been off the scene for two and a half years, so it's a huge effort to get him back to the races and you haven't seen the best of him yet."

The victory made it win number eleven from just 21 starts for the nine-year-old and took his total prizemoney earnings to in excess of A$480,000.

COUNT BOUNCES BACK IN MERLION TROPHY FOR CLEMENTS QUINELLA

Countofmontecristo (outer) edges out stablemate Bold Thruster at Kranji

After 713 days without finding the line, classy galloper Countofmontecristo (NZ) (Echoes Of Heaven) finally returned to the winner's circle on Sunday – and in a feature race for good measure, the S$400,000 Merlion Trophy (1200m).

No doubt, the 2017 Singapore champion three-year-old had to muscle his way to score by a slender margin. But given that success had eluded him since the Jumbo Jet Trophy (1400m) on September 10, 2017, the narrowness of the win mattered little, connections were just delighted the wait was over.

After the Jumbo Jet, the son of Echoes Of Heaven failed to salute in 14 subsequent starts – all at Group level bar one. Though seldom disgraced with six seconds and one third, the barren run was starting to feel desperately long for owner Joe Singh and trainer Michael Clements.

The decision to run him in a Polytrack sprint championship might have at first glance cocked a few eyebrows, but the true pundits would know Clements hadn't knocked his head. Countofmontecristo ran a close second to Distinctive Darci (NZ) (Darci Brahma) in the same race last year.

Granted, he is no all-weather boffin, but at his only other two attempts, he delivered and after the Merlion Trophy's nail-biting win from stablemate Bold Thruster (Turffontein), it now stands as a flawless record of three-from-three.

Clements said that on the duo's glowing credentials – even if Bold Thruster, a gun six-time winner as a four-year-old for trainer Shane Baertschiger, was at his first start for him – he was expecting a forward showing from both.

"It could have gone either way with Bold Thruster fighting back on the fence, but Countofmontecristo showed his class," said Clements.

"Any trainer dreams of such a great result, but a Polytrack race at this level was always going to be a tricky race for both, though.

"There was an option to send Countofmontecristo overseas (Australia) after his last run (in the Kranji Mile on May 25), but Joe went back on his decision. We always felt he was a class horse, he was the best three-year-old and always ran great races, but things didn't always go his way.

"To come back from 1600m and run on Polytrack was a question mark, but he showed his class and did it. He's best up to this trip and the mile."

With that eighth win, Countofmontecristo has now taken his prizemoney past the $1.5 million for Singh.

MAHER HAS GRAND ANNUAL THOUGHTS FOR ABLAZE

A boozy night in a pub in the South Island of New Zealand has resulted in Ablaze (NZ) (Raise The Flag) making his way to the stable of Ciaron Maher and David Eustace and two hurdle victories.

Making a winning jumps debut at Coleraine a week ago, Ablaze backed that up with success in the J J Houlahan Hurdle (3200m) at Ballarat on Sunday.

Part-owner Rod Lyons, who has a share in Group One-winning sprinter Nature Strip (Nicconi), said a trip to May's Warrnambool carnival sparked an interest in securing a jumper.

"A couple of the owners of Nature Strip are from New Zealand and they were at Warrnambool for the carnival this year," Lyons said.

"They said 'we've got to buy a jumper'.

"They were in a pub down in the South Island when a fella came in and said, 'I've got a jumper for you'."

Lyons said the asking price was $25,000 while his New Zealand connections did not know what the horse looked like or whether it could jump.

"Under the influence they said 'no that's too cheap, so we'll toss you, 20 or 40 (thousand)' and we lost the toss," Lyons said.

"Then they rang me to say we've bought a hurdler."

Unbeaten in two runs over jumps,

Ablaze (left) clears the last fence with race favourite Northern Voyage as he heads to victory at Ballarat (AAP)

Ablaze will now be set for an assault on the Grand Annual Steeplechase (5500m) at next year's Warrnambool three-day carnival.

Maher said the work for the gruelling 5500m-race would begin in October.

"He's very clean-winded," Maher said.

"The ground was pretty testing there today and he wouldn't have blown a candle out.

"He'll have a couple of months off now and start getting ready for the Annual.

"It's all about the conditioning. You don't need any time off, that's when things can go wrong."

PIKE TEAM READY FOR HASTINGS CHALLENGE

Cambridge trainer Tony Pike will head into the first day of the Bostock New Zealand Spring Racing Carnival at Hastings this Saturday with some added firepower thanks to the circumstances created by the abandonment of racing at Taupo last Wednesday.

With the Taupo meeting called off after four races, Pike's promising filly Kali (NZ) (Darci Brahma) missed out on making her spring debut in the 1100m three-year-old fillies race scheduled on the day.

That race has now been added to the Hastings programme with Pike confident of a good performance from his charge who impressed many good judges when winning stylishly first-up at the venue back in April.

"We're philosophical about missing the run at Taupo the other day, given the race has been rescheduled to Hastings," Pike said.

"She (Kali) had trialled up well beforehand and was ready for the run so the delay won't have any effect on her.

"It might actually be a blessing in disguise as she had drawn badly at Taupo so hopefully she might cop a draw a little closer in this time, while the weather forecast looks pretty good so the track should be nigh on perfect.

"She is going to Te Rapa on Monday for a gallop and then we will just keep her ticking over until raceday."

Loire (NZ) (Redoute's Choice), another of Pike's talented three-year-old fillies, will also be going to Hastings although she will avoid a clash with Kali as her target for the day is the Listed El Roca-Sir Colin Meads Trophy (1200m).

"Loire will gallop with Kali at Te Rapa and we are pleased with where she is at leading into her first run," Pike said.

"The 1200m is likely to be a little too short for her but once she steps up to 1400m and further I think you will see her at her best."

Pike also reported last start Gr.2 Foxbridge Plate (1200m) winner Endless Drama (Lope De Vega) was in good shape as he gets ready to tackle the feature race on day one at Hastings, the Gr.1 Tarzino Trophy (1400m).

"Endless Drama has thrived since his last run and I'm pleased with him heading into Hastings," he said.

"We are going to take his campaign on a run by run basis with the plan being to tackle the Tarzino and then go to the second day for the Windsor Park Plate (Gr.1, 1600m).

"He will have a brief let up and then we will head to Perth for the Winterbottom Stakes (Gr.1, 1200m) first-up in late November.

"The Winterbottom appeals as a perfect race for him and we saw just how well he goes fresh in the Foxbridge, so I think he will be well placed for that challenge."

PLANS UP IN THE AIR FOR TALENTED MARE

A barnstorming finish for third in the Gr.3 Toy Show Quality (1100m) at Randwick on Saturday has forced the connections of talented New Zealand mare Xpression (NZ) (Showcasing) into a rethink about her future plans.

The former Gr.1 New Zealand 1000 Guineas (1600m) placegetter, who races as My Xpression in Australia, joined the Sydney stable of Chris Waller at the start of the year after winning three of her seven starts in New Zealand for trainers Guy Lowry and Grant Cullen.

She failed to fire in her first two starts for Waller and was sent to the spelling paddock before commencing her latest campaign with a lacklustre effort for fifth at Rosehill earlier this month.

Haunui Farm Managing Director Mark Chitty, who co-bred the mare in partnership with Whanakino Ltd's Ian Renton and shares in the ownership with Renton and several other close friends, admitted the team had been considering retiring their charge to the broodmare paddock before Saturday's improved effort.

"That run caught us by surprise a bit as we weren't really sure what to expect from her," Chitty said.

"It is fair to say she hadn't fired in any of her first three runs over there, although she had drawn an outside barrier for every one of those races.

"We had been thinking that we would most likely send her straight to stud if she didn't come up but that run was very encouraging and has us thinking again."

charged home in the final 200m to claim third and secure some valuable Australian black-type next to her name.

"It was a good ride from the young fellow and we reaped the rewards," Chitty said.

"To get some Australian black-type is great for her future career as a broodmare so it is job done in that respect.

"The syndicate will sit down and think about what comes next but at this stage I think we will probably breed her and then she can race on for a time after that.

"She has been booked to go to Snitzel, so once she is safely in foal we can plan with Chris where she goes after that."

Chitty is also eagerly anticipating the raceday return of promising stayer Rondinella (NZ) (Ocean Park) who had a solid hit-out at the Taupo trials last Wednesday in her first serious gallop of a new campaign that has a tilt at some Australian spring features as the main goal.

The Roger James and Robert Wellwood-trained five-year-old, who races in the ownership of Haunui Farm and Cathy Franich (Frantic Bloodstock) who bred her along with Garry Cranny, is being set for a possible tilt at the Gr.1 WS Cox Plate (2040m) following a successful end to her last campaign which saw her place third behind Avilius (Pivotal) in the Gr.1 Tancred Stakes (2400m) and then fourth in the Gr.1 Sydney Cup (3200m).

"She (Rondinella) went really well in her trial although she blew out quite badly at the end which we expected would be the case," Chitty said.

"She will take enormous benefit from that run as it will bring her fitness on.

"I think Roger and Robert weren't too sure just where she was at fitness-wise as it is a tough ask to be getting horses ready on our wet winter tracks, so that should have given them a good line on her.

"She showed she was competitive against the best when she was in Australia last time so we are pretty excited about her prospects again this time if she can perform to that level again."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Maher and Eustace Humidor to tackle Memsie

Multiple Group One winner Humidor (NZ) (Teofilo) will tackle the Gr.1 New Zealand Bloodstock Memsie Stakes (1400m) this weekend for new trainers Ciaran Maher and David Eustace, with Maher looking forward to him making his debut for the stable.

Previously trained by Darren Weir, Humidor won the Memsie Stakes second-up last year and will be entering Saturday's race first-up this time around.

Maher said after two official trials and a jump-out, Humidor was ready to make his racetrack return after missing the autumn with a leg injury.

Humidor will be ridden by Damian Lane who was aboard the gelding when he ran third to Winx (Street Cry) in last year's Gr.1 Cox Plate (2040m).

"He's had three trials now and he's ready to go, but will be improved by the run," Maher said.

"He's a quirky bugger but he seems free and happy and Damian Lane knows him very well and he's happy with him."

Maher is aiming Humidor towards a third attempt at the Cox Plate after his second and third in the past two years.

The trainer does not believe the gelding has lost any of his ability after his injury lay-off.

"He's shown me enough but I haven't squeezed him that hard yet," Maher said.

WIGLEY LOOKING FOR TWO-PRONGED ATTACK ON FILLY FEATURES

Exciting filly Intimidate will step out at the Rangiora trials on Tuesday (Race Images South)

Rangiora based trainer Nick Wigley could have a two-pronged attack on some of the three-year-old filly features in the South Island this spring if all goes to plan at Tuesday's Rangiora trials.

Wigley and new training partner Kayla Milnes will line-up Charm Spirit filly Intimidate (NZ), who impressed when winning over 1000m at Riccarton in July to round-out her two-year-old campaign, along with a Sacred Falls half-sister to Gr.1 New Zealand Two Thousand Guineas (1600m) winner Ugo Foscolo (NZ) (Zacinto), who they also hold in high regard.

"Intimidate has been back in work for a while now and galloped well during the week," Wigley said.

"She has come back bigger and stronger and we are hoping that her manners have improved as well.

"She liked to rip and tear into things in her last campaign which can cause a few issues but if she can learn to settle, we think she has the ability to compete against the better fillies.

"She will have a run at the trials on Tuesday and then we plan to start her first up over 1000m in an open three-year-old event at Riccarton on September 7.

"Provided she comes through that well her mission will be the Canterbury Belle Stakes (Listed, 1200m) back at Riccarton a fortnight later."

Wigley also has plenty of time for the Sacred Falls filly who has been measuring up well when working alongside Intimidate of late.

"The Sacred Falls filly also looks very promising and we think she could be another who will step up to the mark pretty quickly," Wigley said.

"She galloped with Intimidate last week and more than held her own which was pleasing.

"Being so well related you would hope she has inherited the family ability and if she can put that on the racetrack then she could be another contender for higher honours.

"Kayla is doing most of the work these days and I'm just the consultant so if we could get a decent win on board that would be a great start for her training career."

COUNT ME IN WON'T BE LEFT OUT THIS TIME

Count Me In (NZ) (Showcasing) lived up to his prohibitive $7 odds with a commanding win in the $50,000 Spalato 2016 Stakes over 1100m on Sunday.

Ridden by in-form jockey Benny Woodworth, the Showcasing colt, who flew home to miss third place by a neck in the Aushorse Golden Horseshoe (1200m), proved to be way too good in the easier Class 4 Division 2 event.

Held in centrefield by Woodworth, Count Me In, who midrace seemed to be labouring on the Polytrack – a surface which he was treading on for the first time in a race - suddenly started to put in the big bounds when he was allowed to circle his nine rivals at the 500m mark.

In one fell swoop, he rounded up the leading bunch before skipping clear to a comfortable 1 3/4-length win.

At a rare double after saddling the winner in the first race, Yulong Fire (Red Jazz), trainer David Kok was full of praise for the Mauritian-owned galloper, who scored on debut in Restricted Maiden company back in June.

"He's a good horse with a nice confirmation. He can take a sit and finish off," said Kok.

"He was off the bit for a while today, but I think it was because it was his first time on the Polytrack. Once he went around he was okay.

"I'll probably bring him back to turf next, give him another run before we aim him at the Saas Fee Stakes in November."

Count Me In proves too strong at Kranji

The Saas Fee Stakes over 1200m on turf is for the first time open to only three-year-olds this year.

With two months to go before the race, Woodworth will be hoping Count Me In keeps going on an upward spiral in order to measure up to such lofty level.

"He has been working impressively. He has improved from his two runs," said the Malaysian jockey.

"Today, I brought him back to settle in behind the speed. He didn't enjoy the Polytrack and was struggling for a while.

"But once I pulled him out, he ran on strongly. He didn't meet much of a field today, so he's got to improve to keep winning.

"He's a sensible horse, he just needs to settle better. He jumps and puts himself in a good position.

"With these young horses, you don't want to do too much with them, just teach them to come out and settle better."

With that second win from three starts, Count Me In has now chalked up close to $80,000 in stakes money for the Blue Ocean Stable.

'IRON HORSE' SPOKESMAN BREAKS THROUGH FOR HIS FIRST SINGAPORE WIN

The patience of trainer Mark Walker and members of the Fortuna Sportsman Syndicate were rewarded in spades on Sunday at Kranji when five-year-old gelding Spokesman (NZ) (Alamosa) broke through for his first Singapore win.

"Since acquiring Spokesman in January of this year, he has had 10 starts for us prior to today and had won prizemoney in nine of them," said Fortuna director John Galvin.

"So, while he is no champion, he is honest as the day is long and now gets a well-deserved win.

"Mark decided that we needed to be positive from the wide draw and try and lead and Zawari (Razali) executed the tactics perfectly – so big kudos to trainer and jockey"

Drawn in barrier 11 in an 11-horse field over the 1600 metre trip on turf in Class 5 grade ($30,000 Speedy Cat Stakes), Spokesman was fired out of the gates, with Zawari soon having him in the lead, while maintaining a solid tempo in the run.

Still sitting quietly as they turned, Zawari gave the horse some rein, quickly putting a gap on the field and ended up winning the race by a commanding six lengths.
