WHAT'S NEW DOES IT AGAIN IN STEWARDS' CUP

What's New storms to another impressive victory at Kranji

Smart mare What's New (NZ) (Casino Prince) proved that her winning feat in the first Leg of the Singapore Four-Year-Old Challenge was no fluke when she doubled up in the second Leg, the S$400,000 Stewards' Cup (1600m) on Sunday.

The second win deserves even more plaudits given she again beat Sacred Croix (NZ) (Savabeel) into second place, defying all the pre-race talk that had Mark Walker's charge turning the tables on Cliff Brown's mare with the extra 200m. Sacred Croix certainly put the writing on the wall in the Silver Bowl when he made stacks of ground to finish only one length astern.

Not to mention that What's New had this time round drawn a much wider gate than the coveted barrier No 1 in the Silver Bowl three weeks ago.

But the end-result turned out to be a case of deja-vu.

Well ridden by Australian jockey Ben Thompson – taking over from Silver Bowl partner, visiting Adelaide apprentice jockey Raquel Clark – What's New had half the battle won when she easily overcame her awkward alley to find the fence in the first 200m of the race without spending much petrol.

There was, however, no such charmed life for favourite Sacred Croix, who was caught four wide at some stage, albeit with some cover.

Upfront, Zac Kasa (Reset) was running on fumes upon straightening. Eye Guy (Bradbury's Luck) drew first blood but was again one-paced inside the last furlong.

Thompson, who had not budgeted for most of the journey, got busy once a gap materialised as What's New darted through and kept finding as she bore down towards the finishing line. After taking a month of Sundays to wind up, Sacred Croix let down late to fall short by three-quarter length for the same Silver Bowl quinella.

As a winner of the first two Legs, What's New picks up a bonus of $50,000 which will treble up if she completes the clean sweep in the Singapore Derby (1800m) on July 21, but Brown was in no rush to head that way yet.

"She just thrived. I was confident again she'd run well," said Brown.

"I'm not convinced yet What's New is a Derby horse. The 1800m might be too long for her.

"She was strong in the end."

Thompson was notching a third Group win in Singapore, with all three coming for Brown.

"I've been very lucky. A big thank you to Cliff Brown and the entire team, Tim Fitzsimmons, who will train on his own soon, Tony Lane who just joined them, Chris Bock, Sabri and the boys," said Thompson.

"I've always said this mare was a model of consistency. She's been so well conditioned, she's a happy horse.

"I was lucky to find the rails and I then just let her switch off. My plan was to let her slide and then she will finish off.

"After she did not get the draw in the Silver Bowl, Cliff told me 'don't ride her away from her pattern, just ride her neutral' – and it's paid off."

With that sixth win and another seven placings from 16 starts, What's New has now amassed more than $550,000 for the Tarnpirr Stable, excluding the $50,000 bonus for winning the two Legs.

Bred by Greg Perry under his Greenwich Stud banner, What's New is the first foal of Oasis Dream mare Pussycat Dream, a daughter of Gr.1 Ellerslie Sires Produce Stakes (1200m) winner Good Faith (NZ). She is also closely related to Gr.1 Australian Oaks (2400m) winner Daffodil (NZ) (No Excuse Needed).

COLLETT BACK IN THE WINNING GROOVE

A copybook effort aboard local runner Poker Face (NZ) (Jimmy Choux) paved the way for talented rider Alysha Collett to make her long-awaited reappearance in the winner's enclosure following an injury-enforced break from the jockey ranks.

Collet sustained a serious injury to her L1 Lumbar vertebra, along with a fractured right heel when she fell from her mount at Kranji on October 14. Following successful spinal surgery, she spent the next six months recuperating in New Zealand before being cleared to return to race riding earlier this month.

A somewhat frustrating run of twenty-six rides without a winner came to an end in the last race of the day at Ruakaka on Saturday as she punched home the Chris Gibbs and Michelle Bradley-trained Poker Face in the rating 82, 2100m contest.

"It just feels so good to get the monkey off my back," Collett said.

"It hasn't actually been that long but it seems like an eternity since I had my last winner given what has gone on.

"I've been really thankful for the rides I have been getting since I started back and I knew it was just a matter of time until I got the win but I wanted it that much, it did start to get a little frustrating."

Collett was confident she had her best chance of a win with Poker Face after the five-year-old Jimmy Choux gelding had flown home for a fifth over a mile at Ruakaka a fortnight earlier.

"He went a great race last time and both Chris and Michelle thought the step up to 2100m on Saturday would be perfect for him," she said.

"We had a good draw which meant I could get him into a nice position on the fence and when he got the gap on the fence, he really charged home.

"It was such a great feeling to finally get that win on the board."

Collett has a busy month coming up as she waits for her visa to come through so she can make her return to riding in Singapore.

"I'm going to ride here for another week or so then I'm having a ten-day holiday after that," she said.

"When I get back, I will start riding here again but hopefully by then my visa for Singapore will have come through.

"Without the visa it puts your plans up in the air a little but if I can get that sorted out before the start of the new New Zealand season that would be a big help."

HELLO IT'S ME MAKES SUCCESSFUL RETURN ON HOME TURF

Progressive mare Hello It's Me (NZ) (Darci Brahma) made her return to the racetrack a winning one when she took out the feature event at Ruakaka on Saturday, the Northpine Waipu Cup (1400m).

The talented four-year-old hadn't been seen since finishing well back in the Gr.2 Rich Hill Mile (1600m) at Ellerslie on New Year's Day. That performance convinced trainers Chris Gibbs and Michelle Bradley that some time away would be in the mare's best interest so she went to the paddock for a decent break.

All indications were that the daughter of Darci Brahma was fit and ready to make her return on Saturday and so it proved as she raced away in the home straight for replacement rider Andrew Calder to win comfortably over Hanger (NZ) (O'Reilly) and Go Nicholas (NZ) (Danroad).

Co-trainer Michelle Bradley admitted she felt a mix of relief and elation with the result as she had been eagerly anticipating the mare's return to the track.

"It hadn't been a good day up until then as we hadn't put a winner on the board but all that changed with the performance that she (Hello It's Me) delivered," Bradley said.

"I have just been so excited waiting to get her back to the track as she has been working well and we knew she was fit and ready to go first up.

"To see her win like that was just so rewarding and great for her owners who have been so patient with her."

Bradley is now looking forward to the challenge of placing the mare to her best advantage over the coming months.

"Now she is back, the hardest task will be finding the right races for her," she said.

"She is pretty versatile and with the win over 1400m first up it is likely we will go to a mile next for her.

"We will sit down and discuss that as there are plenty of good races in the spring but it is a matter of keeping her in the zone and working our way to them.

"The Hawke's Bay spring carnival is in the back of our minds but that isn't until the end of August so there is plenty of time before then."

The victory capped a winning double for Calder who had taken out the previous race on the Richard Collett-trained Von Trapp (NZ) (Swiss Ace). He picked up the mount on Hello It's Me after regular rider Cameron Lammas was stood down following race four after sustaining an elbow injury in the starting gates.

PARKES TAKING SUCCESS IN HIS STRIDE

With just one win required to match his best tally for a season and just five wins behind National Jockey's Premiership leader Lisa Allpress, you could be forgiven for thinking Johnathan Parkes was plotting a huge month in July.

On the contrary, the popular Central Districts horseman is happy to just go with the flow and take a what will be will be attitude into the final weeks of the 2018/19 racing season.

A winning treble at Hastings on the weekend saw Parkes notch his 117th victory for the season (he rode 118 winners in 2013/14), with a strike rate of 4.97, second only to Opie Bosson (4.48) in the top forty riders on the premiership ladder.

Despite that success Parkes admits he isn't one to chase records or the like.

"I'm really happy with how my season has gone but I'm not chasing the premiership or anything like that," he said.

"I'm not a natural lightweight so over the last couple of winters I've actually ridden a little heavier in the winter so I can look after myself.

"I generally ride at around 54.5kg in the summer but in the winter now I'm walking around 56kgs. It is really tough to be wasting and the like in the winter so it's better for me to ride at a weight I'm comfortable with.

"I'll be back to the lower weight once the spring rolls around but the extra weight limits what I can ride at this time of the year so things like chasing premierships etc. are not realistic, so I just don't worry about it."

Given he is riding so well it seems odds on that he will break his personal best tally of wins for a season, a feat that Parkes will be pleased to achieve.

"I've had a really good season and I've managed to get on some very nice horses," he said.

"I've had terrific support from trainers wherever I've ridden, including when I've gone either North or South to ride at the bigger carnivals and the like.

"I'm very thankful for that support as without it you just don't get the opportunities you need to be successful."

While other jockeys and trainers may be planning a mid-winter break in warmer climates, Parkes will be staying closer to home to see in the new season.

"I know some jockeys head over to places like Fiji and the like towards the end of July but I'm happy staying here and riding right through," he said.

"There are good meetings coming up like the winter carnival in Christchurch so if I can get some good rides I'll definitely be going there as I love riding at Riccarton.

"Hopefully a horse like Comeback, who I've won a couple on, will go for the Winter Cup, (Gr.3, 1600m) as he is one I would definitely go down to ride.

"In the meantime, I just want to be getting ready for another big season and hopefully getting on horses that can be competitive at the highest level which is what every jockey wants."

KOK'S DEBUTANT READY TO BE COUNTED FROM DAY 1

Newcomer Count Me In (NZ) (Showcasing) made a sterling winning debut in the $75,000 War Affair 2015 Stakes, a Restricted Maiden Division 1 race over 1200m on Sunday.

While the Showcasing two-year-old had not shown anything earth shattering at his two barrier trials, trainer David Kok was quietly confident about a forward showing from the colt raced by a new Mauritian owner Stephen Tin of Blue Ocean Stable.

"I was quite confident he would run well first-up. He's been working very well," said Kok.

"I bought him and Tin's Machine at the New Zealand two-year-old breeze-ups last year. Benny Woodworth was the one who introduced me to a Mauritius businessman he used to ride for when he rode there, Mr Stephen Tin.

"Stephen was keen to own horses in Singapore, and he bought both. I'm glad Count Me In won for him at his very first day as an owner here."

Mr Tin was unfortunately not on hand to toast to the fairy-tale start but could watch the race 'live' on the Indian Ocean island.

"When I saw Count Me In following nicely in second place, my heart was beating fast," said Mr Tin.

"It was exciting to see him tackle the leader upon straightening and win a nice race on debut. Count Me In is named after a Mauritian racehorse I liked a lot.

Count Me In scores on debut at Kranji

"Well done to David, and thanks to Benny for recommending me to him. He's a good trainer.

"The prizemoney in Singapore is one of the best in the world. That Restricted Maiden race alone is worth $75,000, which is a lot more than the races are worth here."

Richer spoils may already be in the offing with Kok having already pencilled in a much loftier target in three weeks' time on July 19 – the fifth and last Leg of the annual Singapore Golden Horseshoe series, the Aushorse Golden Horseshoe (1200m), which carries a total purse of $250,000.

"He will improve from that run and he will definitely head towards the final Leg of the 2YO series," said Kok.

"The horse showed speed in his work, and that's why I put (Mohd) Zaki on as he's good with frontrunners.

"At the top of the straight, I could see Zaki still had a lapful of horse. I was very confident he would win then."
